Meningitis:

The University of Rio Grande and Rio Grande Community College requires two types of vaccines for meningitis. These vaccines are required for residential freshmen or any student who is residing in a college dorm at the University of Rio Grande and Rio Grande Community College. These vaccines are given for prevention of bacterial meningitis, which is highly contagious and can be fatal if exposed.

CDC recommends residential students to have both the meningococcal conjugate (A,CW,Y) vaccine (Menactra or Menveo) and the meningitis B vaccine (Bexsero or Trumenba). Of note, if there is an outbreak on campus, and a conflict of interest in getting these vaccines, the student will have to leave campus in the event of an outbreak.

Required vaccines at University of Rio Grande and Rio Grande Community College:

☐ I have already received the vaccines _____/_____/_____/ Date of vaccinations

☐ No, I have never been vaccinated. I take responsibility for obtaining the vaccines since it is required for all residential students.

☐ No, I have never been vaccinated. I chose to opt out of the mandatory vaccines for personal reasons.
